

BRAINERD WELCOMES VETERINARY SURGEONS

DECLARES PARIS TREATY IS JUST

President Believes Peace Pact Will Safeguard World From Needless Slaughter.

SPEAKS AT NEW YORK

Chief Executive Takes Mild Fling at Opponents by Saying They Have Been Listening to Their Neighbors' Voices.

New York, July 9.—In his first speech delivered on American soil since the peace treaty was signed, President Wilson declared that the peace concluded at Paris was a "just peace, which, if it can be preserved, will safeguard the world from unnecessary bloodshed."

The only reference the President made to his political opponents was when in referring to the negotiations at Paris he said:

"I am afraid some people, some persons do not understand that vision. They do not see it. They have looked too much upon the ground. They have thought too much of the interests that were near them and they have listened to the voices of their neighbors. I have never had a moment's doubt as to where the heart and purpose of this people lay."

Great Ovation at Washington.

Washington, July 9.—President Wilson, returning to Washington after an absence of four months at the Paris Peace conference, told Washington citizens who greeted him at the union station, that he came home "confident that the people of the United States were for the league of nations."

A crowd estimated at 100,000 greeted the President at the station. It included District of Columbia officials, members of congress and representatives of the army and navy.

Immediately after the welcoming ceremonies, President and Mrs. Wilson went to the White House. As they passed down Pennsylvania avenue they were welcomed by thousands, and a large throng greeted them in front of the White House.

Responding to an address of welcome from J. H. Ralston, head of the District citizens' committee, the President said:

"This very beautiful reception is a very gratifying surprise and it makes me grateful to you all. I came home confident that the people of the United States were for the league of nations, but to receive this immediate assurance of it is particularly pleasing to me. It makes my homecoming just that much the more delightful. I have never been quite so eager to get home as I was this time, and everything I have seen since I sighted land until now has made me gladder and gladder that I am home."

"No country can possibly look so good as this country looked to me." The trip from New York to Washington was made without incident.

SUPPORT PETROGRAD DRIVE

Said Allied Powers Will Furnish Assistance to Finns.

Paris, July 9.—Approval of a plan for concerted attack upon Petrograd by Finnish troops and the forces of the Kolchak government at Omsk has been given by the Council of Five.

A joint note has been sent the military attaches of the United States, Great Britain, France and Italy at Helsinki instructing them to support the Finnish government if it decided to accede to the request of Admiral Kolchak to assist him in the campaign.

DESK LITTERED WITH WORK

Many Matters Demand President's Immediate Attention.

Washington, July 9.—President Wilson, on his return home, is confronted with many important issues.

A great number of bills are on his desk at the White House awaiting signature. In addition he is expected to name a charge d'affaires for the American embassy in Berlin, to decide when demobilization will be ended and wartime prohibition may be lifted and take a hand in plans for returning the railroads to their owners.

Loses His Life in Airplane Accident in Bohemia.

Prague, July 9.—James Ceary, a secretary of the American Y. M. C. A., was killed and an Italian aviator injured when a machine in which they were flying over the Wysehrad bridge fell. The pilot was doing circus tricks with the airplane and Ceary operating a moving picture apparatus when the plane fell and was wrecked.

STATES IRISH POLICY

Secretary MacPherson Preparing New Home Rule Bill.

Government Shelves Present Measure Because It Is Unacceptable to Ireland.

London, July 9.—The first authoritative announcement on the administration's Irish policy has been made by Sir James MacPherson, chief secretary for Ireland.

MacPherson declared the government had decided to shelve the present home rule bill because it was unacceptable to the Irish people. He said he was preparing a substitute measure which would be submitted soon.

"We must act within six months," he declared. "However, the British government will never agree to dominion rule in the sense it is possessed by Canada. Whatever form of government finally is applied in Ulster, under no circumstances will she be coerced to enter any jurisdiction repugnant to her."

Questioned with regard to the effect of possible recognition of Irish independence by the American senate, Sir James said:

"Such action undoubtedly would lead to a break in diplomatic relations between Britain and the United States. Personally I cannot conceive of this happening. It would be an unthinkable breach of international comity."

SINN FEIN CLUBS ILLEGAL

British Government May Suppress Those in Tipperary.

Dublin, July 9.—Sinn Fein organizations and clubs of Irish volunteers in the county of Tipperary have been proclaimed illegal on account of "murders and crimes" resulting from Irish activities, according to a government statement. The proclamation said:

"It is impossible to resist the conclusion that Sinn Fein and kindred associations have been formed to overthrow the constitutional government of Ireland by acts of terrorism and violence against officers of the law."

HEAVY LOANS TO FARMERS

Banks Advanced Money as Result of Wheat Guaranty.

Washington, July 9.—Senators G. M. Hitchcock, Nebraska, and Charles Curtis and Arthur Capper of Kansas said their folks back home wanted the wheat price guaranty to remain for the present. Those opposing the repeal said banks had loaned heavily on the strength of the guaranty and if it were done away with, a financial crisis might result.

Big Dirigible Still at Mineola, Long Island

By W. B. HARGRAVE, (United Press Staff Correspondent)

Mineola, July 9.—The British dirigible R-34 awaited only favorable weather conditions today to start on her return voyage across the Atlantic. Major Scott, commanding, and his associates, were anxious to get away, because of the danger to the big gas bag from wind squalls sweeping over the open field at Roosevelt Park. From 300 to 500 men have a struggle to hold her when the wind sweeps today. There was every indication today the start will be made sometime between midnight and eight o'clock tomorrow.

The stage is set for what is expected to become the greatest political struggle in fifty years. The president received a tremendous ovation on his return.

The rioters were mowed down by rifle and revolver fire. Several plant watchmen were injured by bricks and clubs. Demands of the fifteen hundred employees for a closed shop caused the trouble. A renewal of hostilities was feared today.

Auto run to nearby dairy farms, Thursday 2 P. M. sharp. Cars leaving front of Chamber of Commerce rooms. "It promises to be one of the best conventions held and most largely attended," is the way Secretary-Treasurer Dr. C. P. Fitch of St. Paul, characterized the twenty-first semi-annual meeting of the Minnesota State Veterinary Medical association convening at the Brainerd Chamber of Commerce July 9 and 10.

Substantial interest attaching to the association was shown by the filing with the board of trustees of twenty-five new applications for membership.

One hundred veterinarians many accompanied by their wives, marked a record attendance.

The Townley Trial

(By United Press)

Jackson, July 9.—After failing in an attempt to get it before the jury, Attorney George Hoke for the defense in the Townley-Gilbert conspiracy trial today, read into the record a statement by W. Anderson, Minneapolis attorney, quoting an alleged conversation with Ferdinand Tieggen, declaring that prominent business men of the Twin Cities contributed to a slush fund of $275,000 "to disrupt the national non partisan league." The defense was making every attempt to get into the evidence testimony supporting its contention that a conspiracy exists against the league.

President Wilson Faces Mass of Work

(By United Press)

Washington, July 9.—President Wilson arose early today to attack a mass of work on his desk. He has arranged to keep constantly in touch with any senate committees that wish to confer with him. The president has a gigantic task to dispose of accumulated work before starting his nation-wide speaking tour to arouse sentiment for the ratification of the peace treaty and the league of nations covenant. His tour will begin in about two weeks, Secretary Tumulty announced.

MOVIES IN CHURCHES

Methodist Ministers Approve Use of Educational Films.

Several Protests Are Voiced by Both Clergy and Laymen During the Discussion.

Columbus, Ohio, July 9.—More than 100 Methodist ministers in session at the Centenary exposition approved the introduction of motion pictures into their churches as a religious and spiritual and educational movement.

Several protests were made by both ministers and laymen. It was said that motion pictures in the churches defeated the purpose for which the Sabbath was created and changed it from a day of rest to a day of pleasure seeking. It was also brought out that Methodists were contradicting themselves in permitting pictures in their churches, especially on Sundays, when they were opposed to motion picture houses keeping open on Sunday.

"I approve pictures to create an atmosphere in the church," said Dr. Charles F. Reischer of New York, "which could not otherwise be obtained. They should not be made paramount but rather incidental to religious teaching, however."

AMENDS LEAGUE COVENANT

French Committee Adopts Plan to Enforce Its Aims.

Paris, July 9.—The committee of the chamber of deputies appointed to consider the peace treaty adopted the report of Victor Avagueur, former minister of marine, on the league of nations. The report favors amendment of the league covenant in line with the amendment proposed by Leon Bourgeois, the French representative on the league of nations commission. This amendment provides for an inter-allied military and naval staff to insure execution of the terms of the peace treaty and the aims of the league.

Washington, July 9.—Millions of pounds of meat and canned vegetables delivered to the war department are deteriorating while the American people "need every ounce of food," C. W. Hare, director of sales for the department, told the house committee investigating war expenditures.

The resolution was referred to the foreign relations committee without discussion.

WILSON ARRIVES HOME FROM PARIS

Four Dreadnoughts and 36 Destroyers in Navy Escort Greeting President.

2,644 TROOPS ABOARD

Thousands of School Children Greet Executive and Soldiers as They Land at Hoboken Dock—Leaves for Washington.

New York, July 9.—The transport George Washington, bringing President Wilson home from France, arrived at New York escorted by a fleet of warships.

With a naval dirigible hovering over it, the George Washington came in sight of the Jersey Highlands. The president's transport flew a huge American flag from the stern, the president's flag from the main truck and smaller flags on the fore and mizzen-mast heads.

Salute Fired From Shore.

The George Washington and convoy passed Ambrose lightship led by the battleship Pennsylvania with Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels and a party of other government officials on board.

As the George Washington and the escorting fleet of destroyers passed Sandy Hook the president's salute was fired by the guns on shore.

Met by 40 Warships.

Four dreadnoughts and 26 destroyers from the Atlantic fleet formed the escort that met the United States naval transport George Washington, with President Wilson aboard, 30 miles east of Sandy Hook. The presidential salute from these vessels was the first of the many welcoming ceremonies that awaited the president on his arrival returning from the peace conference at Paris.

In the harbor were 45 warships, headed by the flagship Pennsylvania with Admiral Henry B. Wilson aboard, assigned to join the outboard escort. Vice President T. R. Marshall and members of the cabinet were assigned to the Pennsylvania while the city's official welcoming party, headed by Mayor J. F. Hyman and Governor A. E. Smith, were passengers aboard the municipal steamers Patrol and Correction.

Police Form Strong Guard.

On duty for the president's arrival were 1,100 policemen from the Jersey City and Hoboken forces and several thousand school children were formed in River street to greet the president with "The Star Spangled Banner" as he left the George Washington to embark for Manhattan on a special ferryboat. Immediately after the welcoming exercises in Carnegie hall, President Wilson took a special train for Washington.

The police arrangements for safeguarding President Wilson during his two hours' stay in New York were the most elaborate ever planned for the safety of a chief executive.

Hundreds of thousands of citizens of Greater New York greeted President Wilson.

Leaves for Washington.

The president and his party, following a parade of a few blocks in Hoboken, took a ferry to New York and then motored to Carnegie hall. After a brief address in response to his official welcome, the president drove in an automobile to the Pennsylvania station. He boarded a special train for Washington, arriving in the capital about 10 o'clock.

2,644 Troops Aboard.

Besides the presidential party the George Washington brought home 2,644 troops. They include 63d, 64th, 65th, 69th and 70th companies, Transportation Corps; 463d Aero Squadron; 48th Administration company; 115th camp hospital; 399th and 324th Supply companies; Third Sanitary Squad and Ninth Salvage Squad.

"RECOLLECTIONS OF HA- BE-NA-GWEY-WENCE"

"Recollections of Ha-Be-Nah-Gwey-Wence," the moving picture, produced by the Northern Minnesota Development association at Cass Lake under the direction of Fred T. Lincoln, its secretary, will be shown in Brainerd in the near future. According to a telephone message received by Mr. Lincoln today, the film will be shipped the latter part of this week and he will arrange to have it shown at the Best theatre or perhaps the Park theatre with a program of at least two well known vocalists and perhaps a dramatic reader in addition.

Mr. Lincoln is also making arrangements to have the film showing the fishing scene at Walker, taken this spring at the annual outing of the John Crowe fishing club and in which prominent local people are seen, among them being W. H. Gemmell, Dr. J. A. Thabes and son John, Judge C. W. Stanton of Bemidji, and Mons. Mahlum of Brainerd and others.

These two films with the program being prepared, should make a splendid evening's entertainment and the fact that this picture is produced and the scenario written by a local man adds interest to the same.

The moving picture company writes that the pictures are very distinct and realistic, the scenes lively and the setting unique in itself, as it is staged upon Norway Beach among the tall pines of that locality.

The fact that a local man saw the opportunity to put on the pageant, later to have it filmed for the movies and that it has proven up to all expectations, adds to its interest here and in other cities where the Northern Minnesota Development association and its activities are known.
The date for the showing of the picture will be announced later and meanwhile local people are waiting the opportunity to see it and to hear the good program to go with it.

HERE BIRDS FIND SANCTUARY

Area in Delta of Yukon River, Valueless for Other Purposes, Is Now Profitably Employed.

The most important, and by far the largest in extent, of our national "refuges" for the preservation of wild birds is a vast area in the delta of the Yukon river, proclaimed as such by an edict from the White House just ten years ago.

It is an area approximately equal to Massachusetts, and the most valuable feather species concerned are wild geese and wild ducks, which breed there in countless numbers.

There is found the proper home of the "emperor" goose, the "white-fronted" goose, and many species of ducks which are sought as game in other latitudes.

The region is known as "tundra country"—devoid of trees, swampy, with many lakes, and of no possible usefulness for agriculture or any other purpose. If, however, the wildfowl are there safeguarded on their breeding grounds, it will be a permanent source of game and food supply for Alaska and the entire Pacific coast.

In order that this may come to pass, it is necessary that the birds shall be protected during the mating season against the wholesale slaughter which formerly was conducted by pot-hunters and alleged sportsmen from year to year—a method commonly adopted being to drive the helpless creatures into pens built for the purpose, where they were ruthlessly murdered.

TONIE'S FRIEND

By JACK LAWTON.

John Burrows brought his automobile to a standstill, before the last cottage of the dingy factory street.

Antonio Mangella, the disturbing element of the great industrial plant, had but a few days ago reached the zenith of his crimes, by flinging in a rage, his little son down a narrow stairway.

The senior member of the factory firm, now sent its junior member to investigate. The errand was distasteful to John Burrows, and he knew that his influence here, would be as impotent as it was against the evil power of the man, at the works.

Small Tonia hailed his visitor from his cot stretched before the window. "Are you my father's rich boss?" he demanded defiantly.

"That depends," John Burrows answered in his quizzical way, "sometimes I think it is your father who is my boss. How are the bruises?"

Tonia made a grimace. "Hurts every time I move," he said, "an' the visiting nurse has me all plastered up, too. She," Tonia's tone was contemptuous, "don't help much, but when Angela comes, she tells stories an' plays picture games with me an' I forget all about it. Father likes Angela, too," the boy added triumphantly. "He told her that he was sorry he threw me down stairs."

John Burrows remembered having heard that the dreaded Antonio's wife had died some time ago; this Angela might be, perhaps, a coming stepmother for the boy; he was thinking over the possibility of gaining her influence to conquer the stubborn spirit of the man, who persistently sowed dissension among his fellows. So strong was his power, that to dislodge him would mean a loss of valuable followers. And as John Burrows considered, the door opened and a girl came swiftly into the room.

"Angela," cried the boy, his thin arms outstretched.

The head bent over Tonia's was as dusky as his own, and when the girl turned to look questioningly at Burrows, her eyes were deep and dark.

Admiration was in the gaze John Burrows gave her. Her face was like a glowing flower above the plainness of her dark blue dress.

"You are Tonia's friend, I hear," he said.

The girl nodded, as she drew some bright picture cards from a bundle and spread them out before the invalid. Then, mechanically almost, but with a radiant smile at the boy, she began her game.

"I," John Burrows told her, "am a member of the factory firm, and, I wonder if you can agree with Antonio in his grievance."

"I—do not," the girl answered briefly.

"Then, I still wonder," he added and came close to look down into her face. "If you might not influence him to our point of view. The man could be a power for good as well as for harm."

"I can only influence through kindness," answered the girl. "I—try."

John Burrows rode away with a memory picture of her, rocking very gently, the maimed small Tonia in her arms. The picture haunted him strangely. He found himself forced to return again to the dingy room.

"Angela came every day to see him," Tonia told Burrows. "Sometimes she made good things and brought them for his and big Tonia's supper. Big Tonia spread them out on the little table as she told him to, and sometimes, he even stayed awhile at evening, playing one of the picture games."

John Burrows formed a habit of stopping in his car before his home-ward ride each evening. He too, left surprises for small Tonia, an orange maybe, or a new game to play. And if Angela was there, he carried her in the front seat beside him to the end of the street. Angela would not tell him where she lived.

The mystery of her tormented him. The refinement of her manner so at variance with her rough friends of the court, and the simplicity of her dark dress with its white collar, so different from their gay clothing.

When he left her at the end of the street, she always stood waiting with a parting wave of her hand, until he was out of sight. And as the summer passed, the wild spirit of Antonio showed undoubted improvement.

John Burrows reflected savagely that it would be preposterous for a creature like Antonio to win the hand of such a glorious woman. Then to John Burrows came the illuminating discovery that the unknown woman undoubtedly had won his own heart. And when he saw her again bending tenderly over the convalescent Tonia, he found it impossible to withhold his secret.

"I love you," said John Burrows. "I want you—to be my wife."

And even as he spoke the words, the consternation which such a union would cause among his friends, the disapproval of the senior member of his own firm, were as nothing compared to the suspense of Angela's silence.

Then her radiant smile flashed upon him.

"I also, love you," she answered simply. "And I am going to say yes, because I believe that I may be—a help to you. And now, when you drive me to the end of the road, will you stop for a moment at my father's office. I am Angela Wells. Father is your senior partner. It was in visiting him here that I became interested in Tonia, and the rest of my friends. (Copyright, 1919, Western Newspaper Union)

Uncle Sam is Forced to Turn Dressmaker Because the World War Has Ended

Uncle Sam has been forced to go into the dressmaking business. It happened this way: The Ordnance Bureau of the War Department had left on its hands 18,000,000 yards of a specially made silk intended for use as wrappings for cartridge cases. To prove that the cloth is suitable for dress goods Colonel E. E. Garrison had a dress made and fitted to his secretary. Here is the dress. The colonel says the goods should retail for two or three dollars a yard. Bids will be opened on July 10.

LAUGHED AT TIME'S PASSAGE

Blue Delft Saucer, Long Sunk in Ocean, Benefited by Century Immersion in Ocean.

The act of a fishing smack off Eye-mouth, Berwickshire, England, brought to the top of the sea recently a long deep memory. A blue delft saucer, deeply incriminated with baronies, lay among the flopping fish in the net, and it bore a picture of one of the old British coasting and sailing vessels, with the words "Eclipse, Lda. and Edinburgh, Shipping Coy."

Now, the Eclipse was lost at sea 100 years ago. No one survived, no bodies were thrown up, no wreckage definitely identified with the lost schooner was ever washed against known shores.

Yet, over a century later, a china saucer is recovered! Its blue, according to reports, had taken on a wonderfully deep shade, tinged with green, and was very beautiful.

The London and Edinburgh Shipping company bought the relic for about $50 of our money and gave that sum to the British Red Cross. The saucer was sent to the British museum.

"Imka."

"Imka" is the name by which the Y. M. C. A. is known in Czechoslovakia, for "Imka" is the reasonable pronunciation of those four letters in the language of the mid-European land. The Imka is very popular. When the republic of Czechoslovakia was established, its citizens who had returned from fighting with the allies urged that the Imka, with its cantons, but service, athletics and recreation, be invited to come with them. The invitation was given and now the Imka has been developed on an army basis with centers in ten towns and is contemplating establishing a center in the famous coal mine region of Teschen, which is the bone of contention between the new republic and the Poles. As this new republic is said to hold the world's record for literacy, only 1 per cent being unable to read or write, the American "Y" secretaries find splendid co-operation in their activities.

Is the Converse True?

"The Woman Thou Gavest Me"

Think what marriage means to a woman—a young girl especially. It means the beginning of a new life, the setting out into an unknown world of a voyage from which there can be no return.

Do you know that the man to whom you are going to marry your daughter is a profligate and a reprobate? If you do know this, you are deliberately selling her, body and soul, to gratify your rotten aspirations.

Thus in my youth, my helplessness, my ignorance and my inexperience, I became engaged to the man who had been found and courted for me. Love had not spoken to me, sex was still asleep in me, and my marriage was arranged before my deeper nature knew what was being done.

A married widow! The worst condition in the world for a woman—especially if she is young and attractive, and subject to temptations. Something held me to the spot on which I stood. I caught the sound of rustling skirts and found myself listening to voices in my husband's bedroom. There were two voices, one a man's, loud and reckless, the other a woman's, soft and cautious. No need to tell myself whose voices they were!

When a woman has been forced into a loveless marriage, and it is crushing the very soul out of her, and the iron law will not permit her to escape from it, what crime does she commit if she flees to a man to whom she is married in her heart?

Once in a hundred years there comes a great passion—Dante and Beatrice, Petrarch and Laura. The woman meets the right man too late. What a tragedy! What a daily and hourly crucifixion! Unless she is prepared to renounce the law, reject society, and live her own life with the man of her heart!

Wife in Name Only!

MARRIED! The record signed. The words at the altar spoken. The world informed that this man and this woman were one till their lives should end.

And it was all a ghastly lie!

He, a wastrel, traded his name for a wife, and money to spend on his paramour.

She, a sweet and innocent girl, was sold like a slave to feed her father's lust for power. Sold to a man she loathed! Yet she was glowing with youth, thirsting for love and life.

Then came the inevitable—another man, finer, nobler than any she had known.

Was she wrong? See "The Woman Thou Gavest Me." See Hall Caine's startling romance of a woman's soul. As a novel, it stirred two continents and has been translated into every civilized tongue.

As a picture, it is Hugh Ford's masterpiece of direction—a stupendous Paramount-Artcraft Special; pulsing with emotion; vivid with action; filled with sensational scenes in England, India, Africa and the Polar regions of the South.

Played by a brilliant cast, including Katherine MacDonald, Theodore Roberts, Milton Sills, Fritzi Brunette and Jack Holt.

If You have Read the book you'll surely see the picture. If you haven't read the book—you must see the picture. Come.

"The Woman Thou Gavest Me"

Bad as his own life had been, he considered he had a right to treat me in this way because he was a man and I was a woman.

I knew that what had long been predestined had happened, that the wondrous new birth, the joyous mystery which comes to every happy woman in the world, had come at last to me. I was in love. I was in love with Martin Conrad. Yet I was married, and to love another than my husband was sin.

"Mary..... Mary..... I..... I love you!" I could hear no more. I could not think or pray or resist any longer. Before I knew what I was doing I was dropping my head on Martin's breast and he with a cry of joy was gathering me in his arms.

Oh, you good women, who are happy in the love that guards you, shields you, shelters you, wraps you round and keeps you pure and true—tread lightly over the prostrate soul of your sister in her hour of trial and fierce temptation.

Then came the great miracle. My child awoke and began to cry. It was a faint cry, oh! so thin and weak, but it went thundering and thundering through me. A mighty torrent of love swept over me. It was motherhood.

It seemed to me that, while God in his gracious mercy was giving me my child to comfort and console me, to make me a better woman than I had been before, man, with his false and cruel morality, was trying to use it as a whip to punish me.

Seizing him by the white stock at his throat, Martin thrashed him as he would have thrashed a vicious ape. Thrashed him while he fumed and foamed, and cursed and swore. Thrashed him while he cried for help, and then yelled with pain and whined for mercy. Then he flung him to the ground, bruised in every bone.

RAILROAD MEN IN MASS MEETING

Large Audience at Gardner Auditorium Addressed by A. E. Smith, Louis Harthill, R. A. Henning

MAYOR F. E. LITTLE PRESIDED

Plea Made for Labor to Enter Political Field—Wage Report Given—Daily Labor Paper

A joint mass meeting of all railroad men, largely attended, was held at Gardner auditorium Tuesday night and addressed by A. E. Smith, president of the railroad and shop crafts legislative committee and candidate for the seat of Keller in the St. Paul council; Louis Harthill, formerly chief of police under Thomas Van Lear of Minneapolis; R. A. Henning, former mayor of Brainerd and now business agent of the machinists, District No. 32. Thomas Van Lear did not come.

Mayor Frank E. Little, of Brainerd, member of the machinists union, presided.

Mr. Smith said labor needed organization and more concentration on political lines. He recited what had been done for labor by the legislature. He arranged conditions which forced state employees to work ten, twelve or fourteen hours, until the eight hour law for state employees was passed. He praised the railroad shop crafts of the Twin Cities who added in putting a question on the motor cars bill.

The favored state wide labor party. "With a working agreement with the farmers you have seventy per cent of the voting strength of the state," he said. He charged that the State Federation of Labor had not functioned properly for the laboring man. Brainerd should send a delegation to the labor convention July 20.

"You have a chance in the state wide movement of labor to elect a governor and the time to get busy is now before the convention and then at the polls," said Mr. Smith. He spoke later on the value of co-operative stores, and told of the experience conducting one in St. Paul.

Louis Harthill said the state federation of labor had been forced through the attitude of the rank and file to go into politics. The coming convention was to determine if labor was going into politics and how. He claimed labor in Minneapolis could not get a line of its side in strikes in the press, and recited conditions of the yellow cab, the Dayton and the newsboys strikes.

"Those were two strenuous years for Van Lear and myself, but we're coming back with a daily paper for labor," said Mr. Harthill. He pleaded for stock subscriptions.

This labor daily, he said, was capitalized at a million dollars with a working capital of $300,000. It was to be owned and controlled by organized labor and farmers. Tom Van Lear was the moving spirit.

"I know Van Lear is capable of doing big things," said Mr. Harthill.

The company now owned lots two blocks from the city hall in Minneapolis. The building was going up.

The Non-Partisan League had leased the fourth floor of the building and signed a contract for the paper to do printing. Almost every union in the Twin Cities held stock. It was to be a real labor daily paper for organized farmers and organized industrial workers, not non-partisan or socialist.

"We're taking Liberty Bonds at face value for payment of stock subscriptions," said Mr. Harthill.

"We'll read our own news, the true news and have something to mold public opinion," said Mr. Harthill. The first issue would be on the middle of October or the first of November and they would elect labor's candidates for governor. The start off would be with at least 40,000 subscribers.

$100,000 was subscribed for at the present time.

"If we had our press during the war," said Mr. Harthill, "we would not have to fight for wages now."

On calling for stock subscribers, six held up their hands.

Mr. Henning expressed his pleasure at being back in Brainerd, at being introduced by Mayor F. E. Little who had been elected by organized labor and who was backed by a council with a majority of labor men. "You have union men in the council," said Mr. Henning, "and you must remember to support them."

He pointed out that the field broadened and that labor was to take active steps in legislative and congressional campaigns.

Mr. Henning spoke on labor conditions, routine necessary to effect changes in schedules and gave a general review of what had been accomplished since 1917.

"Some of the things fought for nationally, originated in our division," he said.

discharged to the best of my ability. I sincerely regret that my ability is not greater.

In searching for material for this address, the expressions of my predecessors on similar occasions suggested themselves to my mind. I had never before realized the importance of having our proceedings printed. As it is, not many addresses of my twenty predecessors are available.

The addresses of the A. V. M. A. as published in their proceedings were available and it is a liberal education in itself to study the remarks delivered by presidents of the A. V. M. A. in the past.

Evidently these presidents were chosen with greater care than the president of the M. S. V. M. A. at the present instance.

Some of these addresses were masterpieces of scholastic attainment, others were very voluminous and seemed to review veterinary history from Cain and Abel's time up to the present. In fact, none of those excellent addresses would adapt or lend themselves as a pattern for the address I wanted to make.

I could for obvious reasons not aspire to deliver a scholarly address and I am not much of a historian. It is my ambition at this time to leave with you some message which we would like to see bear fruit and be of some ultimate benefit to our association and our successors.

This naturally suggests the possibility that in my opinion we could have a better association than we now have. Such indeed is my conviction. I know that according to my predecessors it is not very good form to advance such an idea in the president's address. But when we consider the fact that out of about 352 licensed graduates in the state only 165 are members of this association, we must realize that we have not done our best to make this association what it should be.

In regard to reasons for this condition it is easy to surmise that the graduates who are not members of the association do not appreciate its true value. But why do they not have this appreciation? We must look within ourselves to find the answer. Complaints have reached us concerning lack of appreciation and recognition of the veterinarians in army service.

The same is true in private practice as evidenced by the fact that empirics exist in most communities. Not enough, it is true, to be a menace. Nevertheless they exist and it points to a lack of recognition of the veterinarian. If I was a pessimist I could enumerate a great many things that are not as they should be.

It is of more importance to find the etiology and treatment for what I have mentioned.

I think a fundamental cause is that the veterinary science of today has not yet been firmly established as a science, at least in the minds of the masses and the same will hold true to some extent in the minds of our big brother, the regular medical profession. This ought not to be. I leave it with you to decide who is to blame. Think it over.

True, our profession has advanced by leaps and bounds, but it is comparatively so recently and the education of the masses is a very slow process when we consider the fact that it is only in the very last few years that glanders have been brought under control, that we are still devising ways and means to control the spread of tuberculosis. It is then not so much to be wondered at that livestock owners still exist who will employ empirics to treat their stock for 'lost-cuds,' 'wolf-in-the-tail' and 'hollow-horn,' the latter especially in polled cattle. What is more a cause for wonder is the fact that veterinarians can still be found who fail to become members of their state association?

They fail to see that if they would win recognition, they must ally themselves with and support every interest that will tend to promote the advancement of their profession. They fail to see that individually they can accomplish very little in this respect and collectively in the association they may be a power to accomplish a great many things needed. It seems that it should be part of our mission to bring those facts home to them in such manner that it would bring results.

On the other hand, if we have failed to do this we have been derelict in the duty we owe to our profession.

I don't mean to be pessimistic, we should deem it a privilege to be the makers of our professional history. Let it be written on the page there of words of accomplishments and duty well done. In a word, let us be loyal to our profession."

Lincoln's Remarks

Speaking for the Chamber of Commerce, Secretary Lincoln said:

"You are surrounded by historic walls, gentlemen, for it was in these rooms that every war activity of this community has been conducted. The headquarters of the Crow Wing county Chapter, American Red Cross are here. Liberty loan committees here made plans for successful drives and in every instance this city and county went over the top in a bound. The Four Minute Men of the city made these very walls resound with their eloquence and the modest War Savings Stamp here found eloquent and convincing friends.

The farmers of the county have free access to the rooms and equipment of the Chamber of Commerce. Live stock shipping associations, Co-operative creameries, Farm Bureaus and in fact nearly all of the rural activities of the county were either born or had their inception within the rooms of this association.

We claim for Brainerd, the fourth largest chamber of commerce in the state. Our equipment, rooms and the general atmosphere of activity speak for themselves. We have been honored with having the headquarters of the Northern Minnesota Development association established here. The promoters of the Northern Division of the Mississippi River Scenic Highway decided upon Brainerd as best adapted for headquarters, made it such and gave us the modest honor of selecting the secretary and a member of the advisory board from Brainerd.

I modestly cite these facts to call your attention to the fact that you are in one of the liveliest and best little cities in Minnesota and that you are being welcomed by an organization recognized throughout the state and northwest. Why are these things so? The answer is: Brainerd citizens work together as one man when it comes to putting anything over for the home town. We have no factions, no differences, no selfishness. We do things in Brainerd and do not waste time in talking about them.

The officers of this organization have but to send out notice of a meeting for the discussion of matters of common interest and these rooms are packed to the doors with eager boosters from every walk of life, with a will to do and utterly ignoring the wall of the pessimist. "It can't be did."

Look about you in Brainerd and note the improvements now under way. A new depot to cost approximately $250,000. New waterworks system, estimated cost $300,000; new court house, $250,000, and these are but mere incidents in the improvement campaign to be carried on in Brainerd. I sometimes think, gentlemen, that the only reason the Chamber of Commerce has for not changing the personnel of its officers in at least one respect is that should a competent man be secured who could please everybody, (there are many of such men) this town could not contain itself and would soon swallow up Little Falls, St. Cloud and perhaps St. Paul.

Seriously, let me extend to you on behalf of the officers of this association our most cordial welcome and the assurance that it is our aim to make your stay in these rooms, the community center of Brainerd, most pleasant. The staff of the association is at your disposal and every facility that may add to your comfort is gladly offered you. If you carry away with you happy thoughts of the Chamber of Commerce when you leave here, our officers and members will feel doubly paid for any small effort we may have made."

OLD PAPERS—5c BUNDLE

Ireland Still Medieval

In Ireland we are still medieval, and think that how to live is more important than how to get a living. When I was a young man if I announced that I intended next morning to break of day to start on some enterprise of amusement, or it might be of high duty, the whole family would get up to see me off; but if it were on some matter of mere commercial gain, I would breakfast in the care of the servants. It was thus through the whole of Irish life.—John Butler Yeats.

WET ADVOCATES BLOCK MEASURE

Prevent House Reaching Vote On Bill to Enforce National Prohibition.

LIMIT SET TO DEBATE

While Special Rule Adopted Allows Only Twelve Hours for Consideration Final Action May Not Be Taken This Week.

Washington, July 9.—By adopting, 235 to 59, a special rule for immediate consideration of prohibition enforcement legislation, the house indicated sufficient votes to enact the bill without the 12 hours of general debate allotted members anxious to speak for and against its passage.

But, despite its big majority and the promise by Chairman Volstead of the Judiciary committee that all of the time set aside may not be used, indications were that a vote on the bill itself would not be reached this week. Every effort was made by anti-prohibitionists to delay consideration by claims of no quorum, demands for roll calls and by forcing the reading of the printed text of the bill.

Dilatory Tactics Charged.

All these attempts at delay were accepted with good grace by the majority, until Representative Sabath of Illinois and Representative Caldwell of New York, both Democrats, brought a protest from members who declared they were endeavoring to dilatory tactics to slow up the proceedings. Less than two of the 12 hours for debate had been used when the house adjourned, to resume consideration Thursday.

No attempt was made to split the bill to take out the first part relating solely to enforcement of wartime prohibition with a view to its early passage. This will be done later, and while members fighting for modification or repeal of the wartime act are hopelessly in the minority, they announce their determination to keep on fighting until the whole question of enforcement legislation was settled in the house.

Volstead Makes Speech.

The principal speech in support of the Judiciary committee's report was made by Chairman Volstead, who declared he did not belong to the Anti-Saloon league, and had never made a prohibition address. Present day conditions showed the need of enacting additional legislation, the chairman declared, because of the attempt to set the wartime act at naught by dealers selling 2 1/2 per cent beer. For an hour or more the chairman stood, as a smiling target, while anti-prohibition members interrupted him time with out number. Frequently the house was in an uproar.

FIRST OF 1919 WHEAT

Minneapolis Millers Receive Initial Consignment of Crop.

Sufficient Cars to Move This Year's Yield Promptly Promised by Railroads.

Minneapolis, July 9.—The mills here are purchasing wheat from the 1919 crop, the first of which has reached the terminals.

The shipments, which were from the southwest, will gradually increase, according to millers, until in August, when the harvesting season will have begun to work up into the northwest. The purchases are to tide the mills over until they can commence work upon the wheat of this region.

More than 10,000 boxcars have been assembled in the northwest for the movement of spring wheat from this region, and the total number available by Aug. 15 is expected to reach 40,000, according to officials of the United States Railroad administration. In addition, there are thousands of new boxcars purchased by the railroad administration, which have not all been located and it is planned to send at least 10,000 of these here. The remainder will be obtained from other sources.

Minneapolis elevators have been renovated for storage of the expected large crop, it was announced. The contracts for storage of grain purchased by the United States Grain corporation this year will be mailed out to the elevators at once, according to an announcement from the office of Frank L. Carey, second vice president of the corporation. It is expected there will be sufficient storage facilities here to handle the crop.

DIPLOMATS LIKELY TO SHUN AMERICA

MAY NOT CARE TO REPRESENT THEIR GOVERNMENT IN A "BONE DRY" COUNTRY.

CAN HAVE THEIR OWN DRINK

There Are, Also, Many Other Cases in the National Capital, but the Time of Complete Drought Is Sure to Come.

By EDWARD B. CLARK.

Washington.—When several weeks had gone by and no one had been appointed to take the place of Lord Reading as the ambassador of Great Britain to the United States, wonder began to grow in Washington, "Why the delay?"

A Jose answer to the question was given by a member of parliament who suggested to the brethren that it was possible the fact that the United States had gone dry was responsible for the disinclination of any Englishman of high rank to serve his country in Washington.

Now, British humor is sometimes past the fathom. There were people in these good United States who thought that the member of parliament was serious when he unburdened himself of his reason for the lack of ambassadorial material for the Washington post. Probably the truth is that it was a case of dry humor. However, let it be said that it is a pretty safe assumption that no Britisher, no Frenchman, and nobody else who lives in a foreign country and who has some chance of representing his nation in this land of the free, is entirely happy over the prospect of a dry time in the capital of the U. S., "S" in this case, as some put it, standing for Sahara.

Can Have Their Own Liquor.

Of course the United States government is not going to worry, nor need the people of the country worry, over the way the foreigners who will have to serve in this country look at the matter. The dryness or wetness of Washington is of no foreign concern, but the liquor question does enter into the matter in rather a sharp way so far as it concerns the housekeeping of foreign ministers and ambassadors in Washington.

The minute one crosses the threshold of an embassy or legation in the city of Washington he stands on foreign territory. The ambassador can have eighty-three barrels and more, too, of liquor in his cellar if he wants to, and no United States government official can ask him "why," or if he does ask him he can be told in the polite ambassadorial way that it is none of his business.

The United States can go drier that the pit from which we all hope to be delivered, and yet the embassies can remain wet if they want to. Everything that a foreign government sends to its representative in the United States is immune from inspection.

The sparkling wines of the Champagne and the Moselle, and the still wines of all the other fair provinces of France can be shipped to the United States, in bond as it were, to the French ambassador and he can imbibe thereof, and ask his American friends to imbibe thereof, without fear of molestation. The same thing is true of the ales of Great Britain, of the chianti of Italy, of the port of Portugal, and of the rice gin of Japan.

There will be just as many oases in the desert of Washington in the years to come as there are buildings housing foreign representatives, unless, peradventure, the whole world should go dry.

Day of Complete Drought Coming.

Washington, like other cities in the United States, has its stores of liquors and wines. They are in the cellars of those forehanded people who wanted to be able to continue to drink when their less fortunate—friends are compelled to go thirsty. Now, so far as anyone can determine, there is nothing in the law to prevent a man from using the liquors of his own cellars in his own house, and furthermore apparently there is nothing in the law to prevent him from serving these liquors on his dinner table, inviting his dinner guests to partake thereof. So it is that for some time to come the foreign ambassadors, when dining out, probably will be able to get their appetizers and their "chasers" if they want them along with their food.

There will a day of drought come, however, in Washington as everywhere else, and from the point of view of the temperance folks this day cannot come any too soon. When the day of actual drought does dawn it is possible that a good many foreigners may not care to serve their governments in the United States, for the foreigners in Washington's midst are great diners-out and it is said that some of them feel they cannot enjoy a meal unless they have the light wines to which they are accustomed. There may be a good deal of nonsense in this and perhaps after a little the foreigners may be able to get along as the people get along, but it is easily conceivable that some of them may consider the thing a hardship and prefer assignment to some country whose people have not yet seen the unquestionable beauty and wisdom which lie in abstinence.

NUXATED IRON A DRIVING FORCE

BEHIND KEEN SUCCESSFUL MEN AND WOMEN

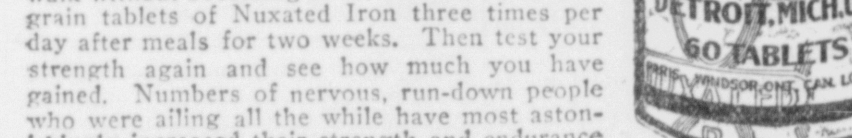

When you think of the successful men and women you know—people who are doing things worth while—you will find that they possess force, vim and energy—the kind that simply brim over when the blood is filled with iron. Nuxated Iron by enriching the blood and creating new red blood cells, strengthens the nerves, rebuilds the weakened tissues and helps to instill renewed force and energy into the whole system. Three million people use it annually as a tonic, strength and blood-builder.

MAKE THIS TEST

See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired; next take two five-grain tablets of Nuxated Iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see how much you have gained. Numbers of nervous, run-down people who were ailing all the while have most astonishingly increased their strength and endurance simply by taking iron in the proper form.
